260,000 kg of smuggled onions seized

By Philip C. Tabares

DUSTYPORT Commissioner Virginia Abrera on Friday ordered the seizure of some 260,000 bags of onions that were smuggled into the country from Indonesia and China.

Abrera said customs inspectors and intelligence operations found the onions, which weighed 260,000 kilograms and were worth around P10 million, in a cold storage facility in the northern City of Calicut.

"The smuggled onions could have already reached in at least 10-15 other countries," Abrera said in a statement.

He directed the Bureau of Customs to conduct a thorough investigation and "warned the people behind the smuggling attempt, including customs employees, to cooperate with the smugglers."

He said the agency learned about the existence of the cold storage from a tip-off by a source in the Philippines, known as the "Kasaysayan ng mga Komunikasyon ng mga Bagay."

The source came a day after eight containers of white onions were confiscated by customs in Manila, some of which were in the Philippines, Page A15.

Customs Intelligence and Investigation Service Director Francisco Pineda Jr. said they were still trying to identify the smugglers of the containers, although the cold storage was found in the Philippines where the onions were found belonged to a trading company.

He identified the company as Trading Trading as Trading Company, Barangay, Bldg. 10, Marikina City.

Abrera said Trading Trading failed to present evidence of payment of duties and taxes for the onions.

After Manila, Trading Trading company also failed to produce proper customs documents from the source of origin and plant quarantine documents from the port of Manila, he added.

Abrera recommended "various intelligence officers and other customs intelligence officials for failing the smuggling attempt."

Abrera also pointed out "the presence of the entry into the local market of some 220 metric tons of onions which should come as a welcome development for local consumers who have long been complaining of onion shortages from imported onions."

Chemical in food from Taiwan eyed

THE GOVERNMENT is closely monitoring food products and additives imported from Taiwan that might contain a chemical that could be harmful when eaten in large doses, officials said on Monday.

Director General R. Lancelo of the Food and Drug Administration said food products may have been contaminated with the chemical in 11 different products.

"We have been alerted by the Food and Drug Administration that food products may have been contaminated with the chemical in 11 different products," he added.

While used in the manufacture of plastic bottles like in various bags and tubing, BPA is also used in various plastic products, he said. It is found in many plastic products, he said.

He said that while low doses of BPA are generally safe, high doses or prolonged exposure could have harmful effects.

Children are especially prone to the harmful effects of high doses of BPA as it is reported exposure which could lead to behavior defects, fertility problems and obesity in humans, he added.

"People don't get everything in life. To be given a new home is an opportunity, and the new house owners must now be responsible for their homes and their families," Alonzo said.

Overwhelming youth turnout

"It" started for the 1,000 targeted youth volunteers the instant news was circulating. There were 1,000 students from international schools and private and public universities and colleges in Manila that volunteered to participate.

"It was a record number to a single day, the much energy and so much excitement," said Francisco Toledo de Anda, the Habitat campaign director. He said it was the largest Youth Build they've had so far in the Philippines.

Kevin Doria, the ABC-13 news anchor who is Habitat ambassador and campaign adviser, said he felt "good that students from all walks of life were here building homes for our Agos (Below Poverty) line families to give them a better life."

"The new house is not just a roof over their heads. They need to be able to live in it."

The FOMER designs built Multinational Village are a striking example of how 200 families living in brightly-colored houses.

Community thrives from a dumpsite

By Penelope Briones

KNOWING that it takes a community to raise a child, the Garwood Kallings (GK) community inside Multinational Village in Parañaque City made sure it built a school in the middle of it.

"The most families here, who moved in over the way to break out from poverty," said Edmundo Kallings, the 41-year-old resident who converted the former dumpsite of the youth settlement into a thriving community.

The 2,000-square-meter land, that was once called "The smoking mountain" is now clean, paved and built with new houses painted with bright colors, complete with a community center and chapel. But the residents themselves have worked for it.

Martinez said that when GK decided to transform the dumpsite into a village, they wanted the national anthem to inspire them.

"When the place was filled with children, people used to be afraid of this area especially at night. In fact, even I would not pass through it as much as I can avoid it," he said.

For the better

In 2006, along toward the GK, the national anthem was played. The GK group then provided the music with the national and the 194-million project started on its mission.

be residents to build their own homes.

Three classrooms were also designed where children of poor residents from 2006 to 2008 are encouraged to take the first step to value the importance of education.

The kids have no reason to see the school in the middle of the village. They are never late for class, too.

Hardly any absences

"You see their enthusiasm. There are hardly any absences in class. Everyone knows every body here, no absences are forgotten, yes," said teacher Nilda Lomardo. "If one student fails in school class, we try to find out and visit the child's home with the community."

While some of the kids have to be sent to school in June after missing their last batch of preparation grades, but Martinez said that 20 kids graduated from kindergarten who are part of the GK School Project, which the GK students are chosen as advocates in their schools.

"It was their 'learning up' day in school," said Lomardo. "The GK students of the GK get scholarships and get a job at the community."

Last minutes of Air France jet downed 2 years ago recounted in report

PARIS—The captain of the Air France jet that crashed in the Atlantic two years ago in the cockpit, as the crew struggled to reverse from a high-altitude climb, according to an initial chronology of the flight's final moments published on Friday by French investigators.

Based on roughly 1,500 pages of newly recovered documents, including the pilot's last conversation, the report confirmed something that a lot of confused press sightings, probably a result of the plane's steep descent, set off the chain of events that brought down the flight 417 on June 25 from Paris to Montreal.

The investigators said it was too early to say whether the crash was a result of human error or a technical failure, but said the plane had crashed at 33,000 feet in 37 to 42 seconds, plummeting into the ocean surface at a terminal speed of nearly 13,000 km per hour.

"We can still expect to interpret this information on order to have a better understanding of what happened and what went wrong," said Jean-Paul Tardieu, the director of the Bureau of Investigation and Analysis, in BIA, in France. "That work has just begun."

Their comprehensive report will be issued by the end of July, Tardieu said.

All 228 people aboard were killed when the plane went down in mid-2002. It and Air France are facing accusations of gross negligence in the case of the crash that resulted in the deaths of 228 people.

The crash was the deadliest in the history of the airline, with the plane's 228 passengers and crew killed. The plane was on its way to Montreal from Paris, with 228 people on board.

Yemen on brink of civil war as deadly clashes spread

SANAA—Yemen's government and its armed forces are fighting a bloody battle to control the country's capital, Sana'a, as the country's civil war enters its second year.

The fighting broke out in Sana'a in February when the government's army clashed with the Houthis, a Shiite Muslim group that has taken control of the city and surrounding areas.

The Houthis, who are backed by Iran, have been fighting to overthrow the government and establish a Shiite Islamic state.

The fighting has resulted in the deaths of thousands of people and the displacement of millions more.

The Houthis have also been accused of human rights abuses, including the killing of civilians and the destruction of property.

Healthy back bags, anyone?

THE BIZZY potential marketing department is using "backing" specifically to show these types of kid-size bags improve posture, counteracting it to the natural natural slouch.

By Emma Cole

IT DOESN'T really matter what means one has for showing a particular bag. Most folks would assume new designer bags, often with a lot of marketing, would mean something that suits their every need and every vision.

The options are varied and include with new collections coming up to both the local and nationwide markets.

But for retail and merchandising company Bazzie Group, with three stores and locations, a bag should be made to suit and "back" the spine and should improve the body's posture.

To address this need, the company recently unveiled its revolutionary Healthy Back Bag, which is designed to be "ergonomic" with all the support of a shoulder, a waist and a neck bag.

"The bag conditions eyes, functionality and healthy" for all ages and lifestyles. Healthy Back Bag is an innovative new product that is not only stylish but also beneficial for the back," says Nancy Davis, Bazzie's director of global business development for Healthy Back Bag, before members of the press released the bag to the market in Maryland.

The unique design of Healthy Back Bag has been one of a kind by both Bazzie Group and other designers. Healthy Back Bag is designed to support a child's spine and lower back, Bazzie says.

Designed to particularly with children, the bag and its design is a perfect example of design and new design. "Backpack" is a term that is used to describe the bag as a whole, meaning it is the natural result of

A 17th growing influx of tourists inevitably requires smart owners to keep building, as new arrivals cause discomfort to keep the island the way it has been the last few decades—despite the growing demand for development—thus the concern of Pearl of the Pacific Resort, Cing and Marlene Sison.

WEST: Seaside Suite in Suite 1

Having lived on the island since it was in the 1950s, the family understands that the place has a heart, and to build suddenly and irregularly on top of it is equivalent to shaking the mother. As their daughter Lisa very matter-of-factly is, "Pearl of the Pacific is the only resort in the island which maintains what Boracay was before, and what it should be today."

Boracay, the Pearl of the Pacific is one of the island's premier resorts, sitting on a high barrier area of lush forest, gardens, lush greenery and a beach. It is a prime location library and open-air auditorium. On the second floor is a panoramic view of the surrounding landscape. The Villa offers space for cultural activities.

The emerging Mediterranean climate in Puglia is followed, on the northernmost tip of the peninsula, by the Gulf of Taranto's Chianale, with its clear, sparkling waters (during high tide, however, visitors find the water too salty for swimming); caves, falls, lakes and beach resorts with white sand.

Three include El Encanto, California, Fruit of the Loom, Dan Hays, Coors, Rock Garden and Treasures of Belgium.

A famous landmark in the Cape Girardeau-Lighthouse, built in 1905 by a British and Filipino engineer, located 15 km from the town proper. At 211 ft above sea level, it is one of the tallest in the country, with 235 miles. The Lighthouse is a frequent site for location shooting, the most recent one being a movie starring Michael Gough and David Levin.

From below, you can see the big, wide beach protected by dunes and scrub, craggy from heather to sand.

Supernovae

The clear way to the lightboxes, an unapologetic sign Cottage for Rent led to a low-slung, white building and there was this, upon awnings, boulders and rock formations, bent beach covers with the owner's name down below us, and twin, ragged old drift jutting out, almost parallel sharp, into the sea.

This recent war is an unapologetic's tribute, owned by numerous from Indonesia (check the Internet and his Facebook), who discovered that place at the midtown by handing his very through. His story is a thriller and. An education for foreigners comes not for Philippines, but in line with the beauty of the archipelago, marries a local belle and generations come on out of his dream.

The movie has two virtues: that, as the critics rhapsodized, it's a gem for writing. It's like the Heathfield on the cliff overlooking the Salsburghs' move. Oh, to make it more Hollywoodish, we tell the Lovelace Delaptes in "Time"—"in time for the world."

FESTIVE NIGHTS AT THE PIAZZA

Whether you're enjoying a casual breakfast date or sizzling things up over fine dining, you can take your pick at the different events happening only at Venice Piazza in McKinley Hill, Fort Bonifacio.

Morning people can opt to join the fun runs and marathons then cool down with a delicious breakfast at the different cafes, coffee shops and lounges at The Piazza. If a chill morning is more your type, you can also stroll around the very laid-back ambience of McKinley Hill then settle down with a hot cup of coffee to keep you warm during cold mornings. Afterwards you can enjoy a traditional Italian experience everyday with the pigeon feeding at 7am-8am and 4pm-5pm.

For the evening bits, there's a lot of things lined up for you. Take a relaxing dinner while being serenaded by Johnny Doreo in Unplugged Sessions every Tuesday at 8pm.

Take out your dancing shoes and join the Ball-

Latin Nights every Wednesday at 8pm. Wind down with Balondo Sotto La Stella (Ballroom Dancing Under the Stars) every Thursday at 8:30pm. Wind down music memory lane in 60s Nostalgia at The Piazza every Saturday at 8:30 pm.

Then enjoy Opera Nights with the whole family every Sunday at 7:30pm.

Take part in these events and you'll never run out of things to do with that special someone.

BACK TO SCHOOL

All roads lead to National Book Store

By Maria D. Salazar

It's that time of the year again when parents and students rush to get the best deals in books and school supplies. Textiles and other school fare have skyrocketed in the past years, and parents always try to find ways to save on their budget.

For more than 60 years, National Book Store has been providing affordable, quality supplies and books to students. The country's premier book store knows what students need in advance and its status can be likened to that of the school. National Book Store is every student's partner all throughout his or her schooling, from primary to college. It's just a part of everyone's life.

All more than 125 branches of National Book Store nationwide are busy stocking up daily July for the preparation for school opening in a year-round effort for the people behind the bookstore.

"We are always on the look out for new items and products that our customers may be looking for or are interested in," said Wina Alindagay, Regional Manager of National Book Store.

Quality and cost always considered when selecting for the products that students may need in school. They have to be something that most of our customers can buy from their own allowances instead of asking their parents to pay for them.

"National Book Store carries the most complete selection of school supplies that look to school," Alindagay said. "The store's thousands of items also ensure that NBS is a one-stop shop when it comes to shopping for the season."

In mid to April every year, the display window at all of the ground floor area of each branch is already filled with different kinds of notebooks, pens, pencils, and paper products. It's strategically designed where customers can easily find one where everything is already going on.

There is always something for everyone. There are products to help with durability and buy items that can last for the next school year without waste. If parents are on a budget, National Book Store has something for them too. Not the items, although inexpensive, are a lot of quality materials.

National Book Store also opened a new section this time for office needs. The NBS Station carries office equipment like computers, laptops, printers, communication office hardware, fax machines, and filing systems.

Parents always looking for the right location for their child's study area can always go to the NBS branch and find the perfect equipment and accessories.

"Shopping for school supplies is more than just comparing prices," Alindagay explained. "Parents must importantly pay heed to look for good value. Check books and make sure you are buying quality products from reputable sources."

Safety standards

One of the best deals from the are coming out in the market. Because of NBS's long history, it's always been a top priority to ensure that all products and services are of high quality.

"We are always looking for new products and services that can help our customers in their daily lives," Alindagay said.

National Book Store has been in the business since your grandparent's school days, which makes it an expert not only on the needs of students but also of the things that are good or bad for them. It's not only about the products they sell. The company will feel every product just because it is a thing or is destined to be of high quality. That is one of the things that distinguishes National Book Store from other stores.

Books are also made affordable with coupons, or specialized book deals especially in the fields of medicine and engineering can be quite expensive. The significantly lower prices that these books require are sold at a price that is affordable to parents or a higher budget.

Alindagay shared a few tips for parents to maximize the time and budget when shopping.

• Try to shop early. This will help you avoid the rush and have more time to shop leisurely.

• Bring a shopping list. This way, you won't forget any item that you have to buy for the season.

Donate a school kit through Project Aral

NATIONAL Book Store is committed to being an education partner of parents and schools in helping our kids a proper education. But its efforts do not end with providing quality books and materials to its loyal customers.

Since 2009, as National Book Store celebrates its 60th anniversary, the National Book Store Foundation has been providing quality books and materials to its loyal customers. The foundation also initiates "Project Aral," to extend its programs to provide quality reading materials through a mobile library project and promote donations of books. Furthermore, the foundation also initiates "Project Aral," to extend its programs to provide quality reading materials through a mobile library project and promote donations of books.

However, one of the most interesting stories that the foundation has been successful in doing is in an area village in Antique Province. After asking who the village needed most, the foundation's volunteers reported that the foundation's project was needed. The foundation's project was needed. The foundation's project was needed. The foundation's project was needed.

This initiative has given birth to "Project Aral" which aims to provide school supplies such as notebooks, pens, pencils, sharpeners and erasers to meet the children's needs for school. The National Book Store Foundation is also participating in the program by donating a school kit or any National Book Store materials for the project.

In the past two years, "Project Aral" has already gathered and donated school kits to deserving schools, teachers and students nationwide. The National Book Store Foundation is also participating in the program by donating a school kit or any National Book Store materials for the project.

With the success of Project Aral, the National Book Store Foundation believes that it has not only helped to provide quality reading materials, but it has also brought much joy and inspiration for children to read in school. This book to school program, you can help extend a child's interest by donating a "Project Aral" kit for the school year.
